Conditions of Sale

1. Rejection of Bids. Any bid which is not commensurate with the value of the article offered, or which is merely a nominal or fractional advance, may be rejected by the auctioneer if in his judgment such bid would be likely to affect the sale injuriously.
2. The Buyer. The highest bidder shall be the buyer, and if any dispute arises between two or more bidders, the auctioneer shall either decide the same or put up for re-sale the lot so in dispute.
3. Identification and Deposit by Buyer. The name of the buyer of each lot shall be given immediately on the sale thereof, and when so required, each buyer shall sign a card giving the lot number, amount for which sold, and his or her name and address. ¶ A deposit at the actual time of the sale shall be made of all or such part of the purchase prices as may be required. ¶ If the two foregoing conditions are not complied with, the lot or lots so purchased may at the option of the auctioneer be put up again and re-sold.
4. Risk after Purchase. Title passes upon the fall of the auctioneer's hammer, and thereafter the property is at the purchaser's risk, and neither the consignor nor the Association is responsible for the loss of, or any damage to any article by theft, fire, breakage, however occasioned, or any other cause whatsoever.
5. Delivery of Purchases. Delivery of any purchases will be made only upon payment of the total amount due for all purchases at the sale.
6. Receipted Bills. Goods will only be delivered on presentation of a receipted bill. A receipted bill presented by any person will be recognized and honored as an order by the buyer, directing the delivery to the bearer of the goods described thereon. If a receipted bill is lost before delivery of the property has been taken, the buyer should immediately notify the Association of such loss.
7. Storage in Default of Prompt Payment and Calling for Goods. Articles not paid for in full and not called for by the purchaser or agent by noon of the day following that of the sale may be turned over by the Association to some carter to be carried to and stored in some warehouse until the time of the delivery therefrom to the purchaser, and the cost of such cartage and storage and any other charges will be charged against the purchaser and the risk of loss or damage occasioned by such removal or storage will be upon the purchaser. ¶ In any instance where the purchase bill has not been paid in full by noon of the day following that of the sale, the Association and the auctioneer reserve the right, any other stipulation in these conditions of sale notwithstanding, in respect to any or all lots included in the purchase bill, at its or his option, either to cancel the sale thereof or to re-sell the same at public or private sale without further notice for the account of the buyer and to hold the buyer responsible for any deficiency and all losses and expenses sustained in so doing.
8. Shipping. Shipping, boxing or wrapping of purchases is a business in which the Association is in no wise engaged, but the Association will, however, afford to purchasers every facility for employing at current and reasonable rates carriers and packers; doing so, however, without any assumption of responsibility on its part for the acts and charges of the parties engaged for such service.

9. GUARANTY. The Association exercises great care to catalogue every lot correctly and endeavors therein and also at the actual time of the sale to point out any error, defect or imperfection, but guaranty is not made either by the owner or the Association of the correctness of the description, genuineness, authenticity or condition of any lot and no sale will be set aside on account of any incorrectness, error of cataloguing or imperfection not noted or pointed out. Every lot is sold "as is" and without recourse. ¶ Every lot is on public exhibition one or more days prior to its sale, and the Association will give consideration to the opinion of any trustworthy expert to the effect that any lot has been incorrectly catalogued and in its judgment may thereafter sell the lot as catalogued or make mention of the opinion of such expert, who thereby will become responsible for such damage as might result were his opinion without foundation.

10. RECORDS. The records of the auctioneer and the Association are in all cases to be considered final and the highest bid shall in all cases be accepted by both buyer and seller as the value against which all claims for losses or damage shall lie.

11. BUYING ON ORDER. Buying or bidding by the Association for responsible parties on orders transmitted to it by mail, telegraph, or telephone, if conditions permit, will be faithfully attended to without charge of commission. Any purchases so made will be subject to the foregoing conditions of sale, except that, in the event of a purchase of a lot of one or more books by or for a purchaser who has not through himself or his agent been present at the exhibition or sale, the Association will permit such lot to be returned within ten days from the date of sale, and the purchase money will be refunded, if the lot differs from its catalogue description. ¶ Orders for execution by the Association should be given with such clearness as to leave no room for misunderstanding. Not only should the lot number be given, but also the title, and bids should be stated to be so much for the lot, and when the lot consists of one or more volumes of books or objects of art, the bid per volume or piece should also be stated. If the one transmitting the order is unknown to the Association, a deposit must be sent or reference submitted. Shipping directions should also be given.

These conditions of sale cannot be altered except by the auctioneer or by an officer of the Association

FOREWORD

Sig. Raoul Tolentino, whose activities as a propagandist of Italian art in foreign countries have recently brought him the high distinction of the Commandership of the Italian Crown from H.M. the King of Italy, has the privilege of presenting, under the auspices of the American Art Galleries, his eighth exhibition in the United States of Italian Gothic and Renaissance art.

Comm. Tolentino has long been favorably known for the quality and discrimination of his collections, and his beautiful galleries in the Florentine Palazzo Acciaioli, with its frescoed state room by Poccetti [by whom is a desk in the present sale], are well known to the amateurs of this country who have had occasion to request his advice or to compete for works of art at auction with the Cleveland, Boston, Detroit and other national Museums.

In the large group of furniture are assembled a number of important rarities: a folding walnut state chair [No. 794] with hinged stretcher, of which type only two or three are known; a pair of chairs with tooled and polychromed leather backs, of the finest Venetian workmanship; two beautiful walnut cassoni in the manner of Jacopo Sansovino, and two other finely carved master-works of the Roman school; a remarkable Florentine gilded pastiglia cabinet on stand [No. 791] of the High Renaissance; a Venetian lectern with a bronze lion of St. Mark [No. 790], a sacristy cabinet of the Flemish school dated 1599, and finely painted with four full-length figures of saints; and a pair of resplendent Louis XV armchairs in red Venetian lacquer [No. 778]. Of the late Gothic period are a few cabinets of North Italian provenience, a carved walnut stall with two seats and a Sienese cassone painted after the manner of the Arras tapestries; for collectors, the simple and beautifully proportioned Dantesque and monastery chairs, early sgabelli and library tables of the Tuscan Quattrocento.

The fifteenth century is also largely represented in forged wrought-iron work by Gothic torchères, andirons and fireguards, together with the decorative wall brackets, grilles and garden gates of the Renaissance. An important item is a gilded palace balcony of the French Régence, with an abundance of richly scrolled leafage ornament, fully equal in merit to the famous balustrades of Madame de Pompadour's Château de Bellevue.

The rich stuffs of the collection include silk damasks, the sturdy Genoese brocatelles with linen weft, brocades (among which are two sumptuous copes), and velvets of the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries, with one or two baldacchini enriched with appliqué embroidery. A group of seven original silk palio banners with their weighted staves, from the city of Siena, recall a pageant whose origins are in the fifteenth century, and which to this day draws the curious to the City of the Contrade.

Sculpture in stone and marble is represented in the exhibition by animal groups and gargoyles, fonts and four original Tuscan fireplaces, including one of the school of Michelozzo. A fine collection of no less than seventeen armorial plaques in Fiesole stone, limestone and marble, has been assembled over a great period of time by Comm. Tolentino, and demonstrates the heights to which heraldic decoration was brought by such sculptors as the Lapi and the Donati brothers and the followers of Niccolò Pisano; these are essentially well adapted to the decoration of halls and gardens. A piece of outstanding interest is a XII century haut relief of the Romanesque period portraying the Presentation of Christ in the Temple, and contemporary with similar carvings on the pulpit of the Cathedral at Parma. This originally belonged to the old Hospital of Bologna and was sold only by permission of the national authorities, to raise funds for this institution.

A delightful bronze group of the Flagellation of Christ is by Alessandro Algardi. An assemblage of excavated Etruscan bronzes has been authenticated by the well-known classical scholar and expert of the Vatican Museum, Prof. Albizzati of the University of Cagliari; in it are contained two pieces with decipherable inscriptions, one a tall candelabrum of an unusual character.

Among the reliefs are two original masterpieces by Rossellino, one in stucco and the other in red terra-cotta, and in exceptionally fine preservation. The former is a work hitherto entirely undocumented, and is noteworthy for the introduction, above the Madonna and Child, of a garland bearing the medallion of St. George. Of the Della Robbia family are works by Andrea and Giovanni, the most important being a stanniferous enamel relief, by the first, of Virgin and Child, and a fine armorial tondo by his nephew. Two enamels from the hand of Benedetto Buglioni, collaborator of Giovanni, are also included.

Two reliefs of the first importance are by Donatello; a large Madonna and Child in stucco and the extraordinary wax bas-relief of the Crucifixion [No. 722], in which more than a score of figures are presented with amazing subordination of detail to composition, and of which a bronze replica exists in the Museo Nazionale in Florence; this is possibly the most exquisite piece of the whole collection. Leone Leoni, sculptor of some of the most important equestrian statues of the late Renaissance, is represented by a vigorous bust of a warrior, under the influence, as Dr. Bodmer remarks, of the goldsmith's craft of Cellini.

The paintings cover a temporal field of three centuries and more: primitives of Jacopo del Casentino, Giovanni del Biondo and of the school of Orcagna are authenticated by Dr. Weigelt and precede a little picture by Jacopo Bellini, portraying an incident from Boccaccian romance, two panels of tondini [probably by Giovanni da Milano] and a charming portrait by Vincenzo Catena of the Venetian school, authenticated by Prof. Fiocco.

Dr. Berenson, writing in the periodical Dedalo, has made mention of the beautiful Botticelli Madonna and Child [No. 765], stressing the identity of the head of the Madonna with that of the Venus of the "Spring" and maintaining its superiority to the Lockinge Madonna and the equally well-known group in the Lazzaroni Collection. The painting is full of charm and the most tender sensibility, and is of extreme importance.

Lastly, we may refer to the monumental Van Dyck, Christ taken from the Cross [No. 766]), authenticated by Comm. Hofstede de Groot of the Hague Museum and Dr. Schaeffer, editor of the Klassiker der Kunst volume, in the most unambiguous terms; the latter has indeed promised to include a photograph of this painting in any future edition of the Van Dyck. Of the end of his first period, when he was engaged in emancipating himself from the influence of his master, Rubens, the work is a powerful Rubenesque composition, in which color is fearlessly used.

An attractive setting for a portion of the collection has been provided by Comm. Tolentino, who has brought over at considerable expense an entire paneled reception room with ceiling, from a castle in Piedmont. For the eclectic are two bathrooms in Oriental onyx, of great luxury.

In this short summary we have endeavored to outline the nature and extent of the best collection that this connoisseur has yet brought together, and it is our hope that the many friends of Comm. Tolentino will ensure the success of the present sale by an appreciation of the taste and labor necessary to have assembled such a group of works of art; for, as we have constantly assured our clients, it is becoming every day more difficult to purchase in Europe antiquities of the highest order.

587. PORTRAIT OF A PATRICIAN YOUTH

Circular, with cobalt-blue ground on which is molded in high relief the head and shoulders of a youth in a light blue cloak over an orange shirt, the long hair and expressive face glazed in white. Contemporary polychromed and gilded frame.

Diameter, 15 inches

Note: A contemporary and helper of Giovanni della Robbia, from whose work his own is often with difficulty distinguished. A comparison with the full-length statue of S. Sebastian in Barga (Capuccini), illustrated by Schubring: Luca della Robbia und seine Familie, page 140, No. 158, and the work of Giovanni, would almost warrant an attribution of the present portrait to the latter.

709. MADONNA ADORING THE CHILD

1450.— Against a light blue background the figures, glazed in white, of the Virgin in flowing robes kneeling with clasped hands before the reclining Child. Antique carved walnut tabernacolo frame.

Total height, 27½ inches; width, 25 inches

Collection of Prof. L. Grassi, Florence

Collection of Count Alessandro Contini, Rome

Note: The subject was a favorite one with Andrea della Robbia and his followers, and numerous examples are known, including thirteen in the Museo Nazionale in Florence; the finest and probably the earliest of them is in the Brizzi Chapel of La Verna, the Madonna and Child watched by a choir of singing angels above while God the Father bestows his blessing. The beautiful subject achieved great contemporary popularity in Tuscany.

DONATELLO

FLORENTINE: 1386-1466

[Polychromed stucco haut relief]

721. MADONNA AND CHILD

9.50.

The Virgin is seen at three-quarter length seated and facing half-left, her head tenderly bent down toward the Child, to whom she is giving a dove and whom she supports on her right knee. Her robe is brown, and partly covered by the graceful sweeping folds of a white veil and blue mantle, which fall from the head in long flowing contours. Greenish-blue background. In elaborately carved, gilded and polychromed tabernacolo frame of the fifteenth century, painted with an escutcheon and inscription: AVE GRA. PLENA.

Height, 34 inches; width, 24 inches

Note: This stucco is a very characteristic work of Donatello, embodying all the well-known characteristics of his Madonnas: the tender profile with its classical features, the long flowing folds of the thin veil and the prominence of straight lines and sharp angles in the figure composition. Cf. for example the Orlandini Madonna in the Berlin Museum, executed about 1425. The modeling of the chubby head of the Child is almost identical with that of the Christ in the Madonna and Child of the Kaiser-Friedrich Museum, illustrated in Klassiker der Kunst, XI, p. 171.

DONATELLO

FLORENTINE: 1386-1466

(Wax bas relief)

722. THE CRUCIFIXION

The foreground is occupied by the tall crosses supporting the figure of the Savior between the two thieves, one of whom is being nailed by an executioner on a ladder; at the foot is the weeping figure of the Virgin and Mary Magdalen and other Saints surrounded by the Roman soldiery in the background. Above, in the heavens, appear delicately conceived figures of angels. The whole composition is full of the most elaborate detail and distinguished by the beauty of the drapery folds and the characteristic graceful profiles of the personages.

Height, 38 inches; width, 29 inches

Note: The corresponding bronze plaque by Donatello with which the above is identical is in the Museo Nazionale of Florence, and is illustrated in Klassiker der Kunst, XI, No. 139. The work was executed about 1455, and is one of the most impressive of his marvelous syntheses of detail, carried out in the maturity of his genius.

723. PORTRAIT OF A PATRICIAN IN ARMOR

Head and shoulders of a grizzled bearded soldier with resolute expression, clad in armor enriched with cherub head on the breast and a lion mask on the right shoulder; over the left are the folds of a drapery. On Renaissance crimson velvet stand.

Height, 22½ inches; width, 24 inches

Note: A powerful example of the work of this famous architect and sculptor, who, under the shadow of Michelangelo, adorned the Late Renaissance. The leaning towards classic Roman portraiture is characteristic.

Accompanying the above is an autograph signed authentication by Dr. Enrico Bodmer, of the Kunsthistorisches Institut of Florence, as follows [translation]: "The bust of a warrior reproduced on the back [of photograph] is an important work of the first half of the Cinquecento. The virile and energetic expression of the head, the treatment of the hair, the delicacy of the ornament on the cuirass, on which is sculptured a Medusa [sic] head and a mask which covers the right shoulder, indicate the derivation of the artistic inspiration. We have in fact a beautiful and finely preserved work which has its roots in the art of Cellini, the artistic feeling of which is here displayed with unusual force." Florence, October 3, 1926.

724. UNIQUE ROMANESQUE SCULPTURED STONE BAS-RELIEF XII Century

THE PRESENTATION OF JESUS IN THE TEMPLE. At the right, under a round Romanesque arch, the figure of the high priest receiving the clothed Child from the hands of the Virgin; behind her, Joseph, carrying an offering of two doves. Border with inscription: DUCITUR: AD: TEMPLUM: IESUS: SUB: LEGE: PARENTIS: M.

Height, 22 inches; width, 16½ inches

Note: This rare early plaque was originally in the old Hospital at Bologna and was sold in 1925 by permission of the Bargello authorities for the relief of the hospital. A conspicuous feature of the composition is the presence of the Virgin at the ceremonies of the presentation. The treatment of the draperies and the pose and sentiment of the figures show a close relationship to the frieze on the Romanesque pulpit of the Cathedral of Parma, executed in 1178 by one of the earliest masters known: Benedetto Antelami, a descendant of a family of sculptors living in the Valle d'Antelamo.

Head and shoulders, the head turned to half-right, of a man wearing a brown robe, with short chestnut hair fulled out from under a black cap. In Renaissance carved and gilded frame, within a second of sixteenth century crimson velvet.

Height, 10½ inches; width, 8½ inches

Note: The above picture has been authenticated by Prof. B. Giuseppe Fiocco of the University of Padua as follows [translation]: "This little portrait of a Venetian nobleman is a fine and rare work of Vincenzo Catena that I consider to have been painted a little before 1520, a fact which may be established from the known date of the pala of St. Catherine and Santa Maria Mater Domini at Venice, following Boschini. The contour is still beautiful and the influence of Giorgione is seen in the soft features and delicate chiaroscuro, and the beautiful brown color of the robe. It is a work in which elegance and distinction are combined."

Questo ritrattino di gentiluomo veneziano è una fine e rara operetta di Vincenzo Catena, che si può considerar dipinto un po' prima del 1520, data della pala di Sta Caterina a Sta Maria Mater Domini (Venezia) secondo il Boschini.

Il taglio è ancora belliniano ma già accennano all'influenza di Giorgione il soffice volto e lo sfumato dolcissimo e il bel colore amaranto della veste. Un'operetta su cui alla grazia si unisce la distinzione.

"A good picture of the end of the middle period of the master, when Jacopo still favored the elongated face with broad cheeks in the manner of Taddeo Gaddi. The work is a beautiful example of the painter's eclecticism. The Madonna recalls the style of the master of S. Cecilia, while the Child shows indications of the manner of Bernardo Gaddi, from whose influence Jacopo was turning away. The painting has also stylistic relations with the half-length Madonna of the Charles Loeser Collection of Florence. Jacopo del Casentino, morto probabilmente 1349

Buon quadro della fine dell'epoca media del maestro, cioè quando Jacopo preferiva ancora la faccia allungata con la guancia larga nella maniera di Taddeo Gaddi. L'Opera è un bell'esempio per l'eclettismo del pittore. Oltre che la Madonna rammenta lo stile del maestro di S.Cecilia si vede specialmente nel Bambino le traccie della maniera di Bernardo Daddi, alla cui influenza Jacopo mai poteva sottrarsi. La pittura rivela relazioni stilistiche con la Madonna in mezza figura della Collezione Charles Loeser di Firenze. (Cfr. Richard Offner in Bolettino d'Arte Vol.III. 1923/24 pag.248 ss.)

Height, 24 inches; width, 17½ inches

Note: In an article in the periodical Dedalo, June 1925, Dr. Berenson writes of the picture as follows [translation]: " . . . The head of the Virgin was evidently taken from a painting in a manner and at a moment of Botticelli's career so near to the manner and moment of the pala of the Accademia that probably this other Madonna [the present picture] presents to us our original even more clearly than the too-tender Lockinge Madonna or the too-sentimental version belonging to the Baron Lazzaroni. This head, in fact, in so far as a copy [of itself] is able, reveals a character in full harmony with the serious and monumental figures of the Catherine and the Magdalen of our painting [the pala of the Accademia]. In addition, we felt that it was not a head unknown to us.

Where had we seen her first? Where, if not in the 'Primavera'? This [head] is nearer to that of the Venus of that symphonic painting than any of the other Madonnas we have been discussing. The original must hence have been conceived during the interval between the prose-painting of the pala and the manifestation of that sublime vision of poetry."

Note: The conclusion, not drawn by Dr. Berenson, but implicit in his criticism, would seem to be that if the entire painting is not the work of the master, the beautiful head is at least by Botticelli himself, and in many respects the superior of two of his acknowledged paintings. It is further to be observed that Dr. Berenson saw the painting in the studio of Mr. Decoq in Paris only in its uncleaned condition.

(1) Comm. Hofstede de Groot, of the Hague. Following a description of the canvas [see reproduction of MS.] he writes: "The undersigned considers this picture as an authentic and characteristic work of the first period of Anthony Van Dyck." November, 1922.

(2) Dr. D. Gustav Grote writes [see reproduction of the MSS.]: "I . . . consider it a genuine and characteristic work of Anthony Van Dyck. It is an important, powerful composition, painted in the broad manner of his earlier period, when he had already left Rubens' atelier and formed a new style of his own. Some years earlier he painted the same subject in a picture in the Munich Pinakothek. There the body of the dead Christ is very similar, but the other figures are quite different and show still the almost awkward style of his earliest work. In the picture reproduced here the composition, expression and color are of much higher quality than in the Munich version." Florence, Feb. 23, 1926.

(3) Dr. Schaeffer, Editor of the Klassiker der Kunst volume. Two autograph letters signed and dated Florence, October 28 and October 29, 1925 respectively are as follows [translation]: "In my opinion the picture reproduced on the back [of this memorandum] is an original work of Van Dyck's earlier period, influenced by Rubens." In the second letter he states that in the event of a new edition of the volume Van Dyck of the Klassiker der Kunst series being undertaken, he will include in it a photograph of the present picture.

No. 766. Christ Taken from the Cross

Florence, 23d feb. 1926.

I have carefully examined the picture reproduced by this photograph, on canvas, high 217 cm, wide 147 cm, and consider it as a genuine and caracteristic work of Anthony van Dyck.

It is an important, powerful composition, painted in the broad manner of his early time, when he had already left Rubens's atelier and formed a new style of his own. Some years earlier he had painted the same subject in a picture of the Munich Pinakothek. There the body of dead Christ is very sinister, but the other figures are quite different and show still the almost archaic style of his earliest work. In the picture reproduced here composition, expression and colour are of much higher quality than in the Munich version.
